

Creditable Non-Dairy Beverages (Milk Substitution)

What is a creditable non-dairy beverage?

The beverage meets USDA's nutrient standards for fluid milk substitutes (see table below). A list of creditable non-dairy beverages (certain soymilks) are provided on this page.

Nutrients (1 cup cow's milk)	Requirement per cup (8 fluid oz.)	% DV
Calcium	276 mg	28%
Protein	8 g	16%
Vitamin A	500 IU	10%
Vitamin D	100 IU	25%
Magnesium	24 mg	6%
Phosphorus	222 mg	23%
Potassium	349 mg	10%
Riboflavin	.44 mg	26%
Vitamin B-12	1.1 mcg (µg)	19%

Non-dairy beverages are not required to be low-fat or fat-free. When served to children 1-5 years old, they must be unflavored.

To determine if a product not listed on this page is creditable:

- Compare product's nutrient amounts to amounts listed in table
- If amounts are the same or more, the beverage is creditable

Non-Creditable Non-Dairy Beverages: Almond, cashew, coconut, hemp, oat, and rice milks do not contain enough protein to be a creditable non-dairy beverage. Water and juice are also not creditable non-dairy beverages. Non-creditable non-dairy beverages cannot be served as a milk substitution.

When can a creditable non-dairy beverage be served?

When there is a written and signed fluid milk substitution request for the participant which includes the special dietary reason for the substitution. A valid medical statement is not required if the beverage meets nutrient standards, but the request must be in writing.
